All payment schedules are dependent upon receiving all original shipping and receiving documents and a clear and legible "signed for" proof of delivery (POD) which includes the company name, delivered to, and person signing for the load without exceptions or potential claims. If these requirements are not met, payment will be delayed.

Proof of delivery requirements.

- Upon delivery, the driver must have paperwork signed by consignee. The consignee should sign and print their name legibly. It is the driver's responsibility to make sure that the POD contains the shipper's signature, time and date of pick-up and delivery. If you cannot read the signatures, driver must write the name legibly. When you can't read the POD, it is doubtful that anyone else can.
- When driver is at a third party or the receiver simply signs the shipping paperwork, then a POD can become problematic.
- Upon receipt of the required paperwork job is then closed and eligible for payment.
